Brazen Maidens, Scantily Clad, Block Traffic on Dolores Street

Scantily attired, three feminine visitors with aspirations toward joining the Society of the Sun, left down-town Carmel blushing modestly early this week while members of the police department, wearing dark glasses ordered them back to their cottages.

The three damsels, apparently great believers in the beneficial results obtained from the sun rays, paraded down Dolores street until several residents complained. Merchants reported, however, that they had not seen so many people on Dolores street at one time in years. And even the traffic was blocked for many minutes.

This is the second time, according to police, that brazen maidens have left their haunts on the Carmel beach and have been ordered off the downtown section. Shapely curves are all right, the police department points out, but they must remain on the beach.

"The streets of Carmel are no place for beauty parades," Mayor John Catlin reiterated the warning given last week. "We have no objections to what bathers wear on the beach as long as they are decently garbed. But they must remain on the beach."

The police department indicated that further violations of the regulations set by the council may result in the arrest of scantily clad men and women bathers who persist on walking through the streets of Carmel.

The Bank of Carmel Enjoys Tenth Anniversary of Birth

July being the tenth anniversary of the founding of The Bank of Carmel, which was Carmel's first financial institution, it may be appropriate and of interest to the Community to be informed of some facts regarding the organization, growth, success and operating methods of this community owned bank.

Ten years ago Carmel was a quiet peaceful little village of not many inhabitants, writers and artists being in the majority. Many residents could not understand the necessity of a bank. After considerable difficulty having been encountered in connection with the sale of $25,000.00 in capital stock, and in response to the request of a number of Carmel residents and merchants, The Bank of Carmel was organized and opened for business on July 23rd, 1923. Mr. T. A. Work, a capable and conservative banker of many years experience, was chosen by the board of directors and stockholders as president, which position he has occupied ever since. Within approximately ninety days after opening it was necessary to increase the capital stock of the institution to $50,000.00 in order to conform with the requirements of the State Banking act, which provide that deposits must not exceed ten times the capital and surplus. The response and support rendered by the people of Carmel to their financial institution was immediate.

The possibility of immediate success of a bank in Carmel was at that time doubted by some people, but after the institution had been operating for a period of about six months it was on a paying basis and on January 1st, 1925, paid to its stockholders a small dividend from earnings, as well as created a surplus fund for the protection of its depositors.

The Bank of Carmel during this time has in many ways assisted toward maintaining the development of Carmel along the proper lines and particularly along those lines desired by most of its residents, which type of development has created the most desirable residential community in the country today. The institution has for many years been

CARMEL PISTOL CLUB FIRES HEAVY SCHEDULE

The past month has been a busy one for the Carmel Pistol club and a good deal of powder has been burned at their range in Hatton Fields. In the middle of May they came out decidedly second best against a team from the Anaconda Pistol club, Anaconda, Mont., scoring 1028 against 1079 out of 1250 in a match fired at twenty yards by artificial light, but staged a snappy come-back by tying with a team from the Olympic Rifle and Pistol club of San Francisco both shooting a score of 1070. For several years the Olympic club has turned out teams that were among the best five in the United States so that even a tie is a good deal of satisfaction to the local organization.

The team shooting against the Anaconda club consisted of D. S. Ball scoring 214, Hatton Martin, 218; Jim Williams 201, Chas Guth 200 and Geo. Wood, Jr. 200., and the one that shot against the Olympic club of G. L. Wood, Jr., 220; Hatton Martin, 220, Jim Williams 218, C. B. Tarr, 206, and Chas. Guth 206.

The Carmel club has not confined itself entirely to slow fire. Mr. O. H. Ford the nationally famous trap shot manager of the Del Monte Gun club offered a trophy consisting of a copper tray, pitcher, and four mugs to be competed for by members of the club in other than slow fire matches. In the semi-finals Cooper Anderson, C. B. Tarr, Haskell Warren, Jim Williams and G. L. Wood, Jr., qualified with scores ranging from 162 to 187 with four strings of five shots each fired at twenty-five yards in twenty seconds at a bulls-eye three and a quarter inches in diameter, G. L. Wood, Jr. winning the finals Sunday.

In the month to come the tie with the Olympic club will be shot off, the Monthly Handicap shoot will be held, and the bi-annual match for the Flander's cup a perpetual trophy presented by Paul Flanders will be fired.

In spite of the hard times the club has thirty-seven active members with new ones being added at the rate of one of two a month. All pistol shots who are spending the summer on the Peninsula are cordially invited to make use of the range located on the high-way a half-mile east of the Carmel Mission.

Large Crowds Expected Here As Gala July Fourth Planned

It will be a gala Fourth of July holiday for Carmel this coming week-end.

With virtually every cottage in the village reserved by out-of-town visitors and local hotels prepared to take care of capacity crowds, Carmel's population will be increased greatly for several days starting tomorrow.

While Carmel has never celebrated Independence Day with any public function, there will be many unusual attractions offered this season to tourists. The holiday will start off with the Carmel street fair, scheduled to be staged tomorrow night.

Indications point that the event will be one of the most successful of its kind ever staged here. Many out-of-town residents are coming to Carmel especially to take in the fair.

Tomorrow night, also marks the opening of the annual Forest Theatre season with the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Pirates of Penzance" as the featured attraction. Those who miss it tomorrow night, will have ample opportunuity to see it either on Sunday or Monday night.

While Monday, July 3, has not been proclaimed as a holiday, many large department stores and corporations in the San Francisco and eastbay area will not require their employes to return to work on that day. As a result there will be actually a four-day holiday this week-end.

Location of Postoffice Site Expected to be Made Shortly

Construction of Carmel's $75,000 postoffice has not passed out of the picture with the "forgotten man."

At least this was the assurance given to Postmaster William Overstreet in a letter from Congressman J. J. McGrath of this district.

McGrath hastens to inform his constituents that it is only a matter now of a short time before further action is taken by the treasury department in the purshase of a suitable lot for the erection of the local postoffice.

McGrath, further indicates in his communication, that once the lot is selected construction on the project would start within two months. It is quite likely that by this time next year, Carmel residents will go to a new postoffice to get their mail.

No definite reason for the long delay is given to Overstreet. It is understood, however, that the treasury department was waiting the authorization of the Roosevelt recovery bill before any further appropriations were made for postoffice structures.

Recommendation as to the most suitable location for a postoffice here is now in the hands of the treasury department. Two sites, it is reported, were favored by the inspector who made a survey of the local situation.

Carmel Votes For Repeal, Horse Racing and Riley Tax Plan Fund

In a rather light ballot, Carmel at Tuesday's general election voted with heavy margins in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment for the horse racing bill and the Riley taxation plan and opposed any attempt to divert the gasoline tax fund.

Carmel gave its share of votes in the state total to repeal prohibition. The Carmel vote was 485 for repeal and 113 against it.

The horse racing bill which from the standpoint of interest was next on the ballot, won virtually all over California with a large majority. This was the bill, Governor Rolph had vetoed and had placed in the hands of the voters. In Carmel it was approved by a majority of 409 against 177.

Next to the prohibition bill, the Riley taxation plan which also won out throughout the state, came next, as far as the Carmel votes went. Some 473 residents approved the plan while 123 opposed it.

The diverting of the gasoline tax fund as advocated by Governor Rolph went down to defeat. There was a vote of 490 against it and only 80 ballots favoring it. In every other measure that was on the ballot Carmel went the same way as the rest of the state.

M. DE NEALE MORGAN EXHIBIT AT GALLERY

The current exhibit of M. De Neale Morgan at the Denny-Watrous Gallery, of some thirty paintings, is one of great and varied interest.

Miss M. DeNeale Morgan is one of the best known among the California women artists. Her paintings have gone to almost every quarter of the globe, even to South Africa, where delighted purchasers have transported them to their new homes.

DeNeale Morgan studied with Amedee Joullain, Emil Carlsen and finally with the great William Chase. She conducted the Carmel School of art in 1918-1920. Her work has been exhibited at "one-man-shows" in New York City, Buffalo, Rochester, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Cincinnati Museum, Ohio, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, etc. The University of California purchased her portrait of the Reverend Joseph Le Conte and the University of Texas a landscape. She is a member of the San Francisco Art Association, of the California Water-Color Society, of the Laguna Beach Art Association, and of the National Association of Painters and Sculptors.

Miss Morgan's paintings now hanging in the Denny-Watrous Gallery include several studies of Pt. Lobos and the Coast, Oaks and Lupins of the Carmel Valley, scenes from the seventeen-mile drive, gardens and patios of Carmel, bits of Monterey fishing wharves and various subjects of the country about Carmel.

Simplicity, directness, integrity and indubitable excellence of craft mark Miss Morgan's work. The following from the Oakland Tribune indicate her style: "There is life in her pictures, motion, sweeping lines. Trees and shadows form lovely patterns with clouds and with fields of sunlight on rock and sand."

The DeNeale Morgan exhibit will continue into July.

BUG SPRAYING OUTFIT EXTINGUISHES FLAMES

A fire last week in the Robles del Rio tract in Carmel valley gave a few hours respite to the lives of thousands of oak tree worms.

E. F. Smith of Salinas was spraying the oak trees in the tract when a grass fire broke out. Smith used his chemical equipment to extinguish the flames before any damage was done. But it was hours before his tank was refilled with enough chemical to continue the worm spraying.

Hungry? Save Your Appetite For Fair's Barbecued Steer

By Robert Welles Ritchie

If one prime barbecued steer will serve four hundred diners—and that's counting right down to the last joint in the tail—how many chile peppers would have to be laid end to end to give a cauldron of Mexican frijoles a sting like a tarantula?

What? You don't know that one? Well, Mrs. Bob Parrott of Pebble Beach does, and the crew of expert barbecuists who are assisting her in preparations to feed the multitude at Carmel's street fair Saturday night have all these logarithms of mass cuisine down at their fingertips. Already a thirty-foot barbecue trench has been dug just across the street from Mayor Catlin's iron working studio, a cement mixer for compounding the salad has been moved into position and the three municipal goldfish in the fountain pool of Carmel's Central Park are being taught to rise to custard pie.

Dr. Herbert Brownell, Joe Hagemeyer, Paul Flanders and Dick Johnson will be the steak wranglers and kidney jugglers when the starving mobs begin to crowd the tables immediately after the fair opens at 4 p. m. Saturday. Twenty-five volunteer waitresses dressed as Mexican peonesses will deal the barbecue off their rounded arms at tables seating a hundred at a time; they all will wear the latest thing in Mexican shorts from Xochimilcho. As theatre programs say, the steers are by Stuart Haldorn, Sidney Fish, Anita Dowd and Steve Field. Lambs by Tom Ryley. Coffee by Red & White. Pies by the hundred.

Then there's the matter of beer: the real three-point-two, and if you're skeptical, bring your own hydrometers. In the absence of Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Byington Ford is carrying on the oasis business. She will be assisted by Mrs. Henry Phelps, Mrs. S. F. B. Morse and Mrs. Francis McComas. All the ladies will be madchen in uniform; atmosphere strictly alt Heidelberg; pretzels with a roguish Carmel twist.

There's one feature of the fair which this family paper has hesitated to mention and only does it now on the understanding that the opinion of the Twenty-Thirty Club is not necessarily that of the editor. Referring to the Young Lady Falling Out of Bed.

Several candidates for this spectacle have been sought; but because the Twenty-Thirty Club was inclined to be dictatorial about what the Young Lady would wear when she Fell out of Bed, certain mothers have vetoed their daughters' candidacy.

Now, finally a young person has been found to fill this exacting role. Chief of Police Gus Englund will be on hand the first time she falls to see if she's wearing an old-fashioned nightie, or not.

CARMEL STREET FAIR TO HAVE BIG BENDER

Big Bender, the telescope that looks around corners, will positively be seen in action at the Carmel Street Fair. In fact, it will open the fair in the afternoon of this gay Saturday and will be the only time that the Mount Carmel Obeservatory has ever let it leave the premises.

High on a roof, it will point toward an invisible star. Precisely at the magic instant it will receive the beam of light that has been on the way since the founding of Carmel Mission, and this will release a small balloon carrying a key. As the balloon drifts away a mob of eager kiddies will surge below it—for the key unlocks a chest containing an order for a pair of brand new roller skates. Professor Schweninger, it is hoped, will come out of retirement to superintend Big Bender, his own brain child.

By the way—can you bark for a concession? Barkers are needed and here's the way to see things right on the firing line. Leave your name with the committee at the Red Cross rooms until the big night or that night with headquarters at corner of Mission and Ocean avenues.

SECOND CONCERT OF PRO ARTES JULY 11

After the tremendous success of the first Pro Arte concert Tuesday night, little needs to be said of what may be expected from the second concert of the Carmel Music Society Summer Series on July 11, which will also be given by the Pro Arte String Quartet.

This second program will begin with the Mozart Quartet in E flat major, known as "The Chase.' The title suggests the gay, rapidity of the piece in typical Mozartian style.

A feature of this second program will be the great quartet of Bela Bartok, which a great many people are looking forward to hearing.

Romance of Old Mexico In Songs and Dances Here

Las Tapatias, four sisters from Guadalajara, Mexico will offer a unique program of Mexican Songs and dances at the Carmel Community Playhouse on Monte Verde street, July 4th at 8 o'clock.

The sisters are Emilia Lindeman Rathbun of Stanford University and the Misses Elena, Berta and Clotilde Lindeman of San Jose. These talented young artists are of Spanish and Mexican descent on their mother's side and were born and raised in Mexico. There they learned to sing, play the guitar, and dance from the people themselves. For this reason, they bring to American audiences a most unique program of authentic Mexican folk music. Many of the songs they sing are their own arrangements and will no doubt be entirely new to American audiences.

They divide their program "A Night in Mexico" into three groups. The first deals with the Mestiza Indians from the Peninsula of Yucatan. These Indians are a seriously stately race. They live close to nature and express their love for birds and flowers in their dress and songs. Their costumes, unlike other peoples, are painted, instead of embroidered, with gay borders of flowers and birds. They wear huge colored bows on their heads which are a quaint frame for their lovely olive skinned faces.

The second group of the "Las Tapatias" program is in the form of a Market scene, one of the most interesting phases of Mexican folk life. The dresses they wear are those of the Colima Indians, a simple, happy home-loving race.

The last group of "A Night in Mexico" is a festive one. The costumes of "China Poblana" are gorgeous and in direct contrast to the simplicity of those preceeding. These traditional Mexican dresses have wide red flannel skirts with embroidered designs of flowers, eagles or Aztec Gods in brilliant sequins.

"Las Tapatias" come direct from a series of concerts given at the Menlo Circus club, Menlo Park and at Stanford University, where they received an ovation.

"Las Tapatias" will be accompanied by Pablo Fedelin with his mandolin and Mariano Flores guitarist, both of Mexico City.

Masterpiece of Moliere at the Playhouse

A clever dramatist of seventeenth century France once dedicated the prologue of one of his plays to his king, because "After the glorious fatigues and victorious exploits of our august monarch, it is quite right that those who write should labor either to praise or to amuse him." The play designed to amuse the "august monarch" was "The Imaginary Invalid" and the playwright was Moliere.

Carmelites who have labored on the Street Fair will have achieved a "glorious fatigue" by the night of July 6, the opening date of the Carmel Community Players' production of the French comedy. Laughter is the best tonic for tired nerves and bodies and there are few livelier farces than Moliere's. Hidden behind the amusing situations, the elaborate silk and lace speeches, the clandestine love affair is a genuine attack against the medical professions. Moliere himself was a victim of doctors who prated solemnly in Latin and hid their ignorance under a flowing black robe and dignified manner.

The title role will be played by J. Rosslyn Jones, who will be supported by the following cast: James Darling as Beralde, Philip Remer as Cleante, Tom Tooker as Mr. Purgon, Millard Pierson as Mr. Diafoirus, Leon Wilson as Thomas Diafoirus; Jimmy Darling as M. de Bonnefoi, Ruth Thompas Mr. Fleurant, James Thoburn son as Beline, Nancy Thompson as Angelique, Ruth Pinkham as Toinette and Mary Jane Dawson as Louison. The play is under the direction of Kit Cooke, assisted by Frederick Burt.

The play will be presented July 6, 7 and 8. The ticket sale will open Monday, July 2 at Staniford's Drug Store and the Carmel Drug store.

State May Acquire Pfeiffer Property For Park Purposes

The probability that the Pfeiffer property in the Big Sur section may be acquired as a state park by the California state park commission loomed definitely today.

It was understood that the state chamber of commerce committee who recently inspected the property has recommended favorably its proposed acquisition. The parks commission may act on this recommendation within the next few weeks.

W. A. S. Foster, assistant chief of the division of state parks of this district, was in Carmel last week and went over the Pfeiffer property. Foster, while not wanting to be quoted indicated that the commission as a whole appeared to approve the acquisition of this acreage.

If the negotiations go through, it will give this northern section of the county two scenic state parks. Early this year, Point Lobos, one of the most famous scenic spots in the country, was taken over by the state as a public park.

"KIDDIE KAPERS" A BIG EVENT OF SALINAS RODEO

Thousands of children are taking part in the "Kiddie Kapers" a part of the California Rodeo at Salinas on Thursday evening, July 20th when a parade made up entirely of children and many miles long, go shouting down the streets of the Rodeo City.

Every child who takes part in costume in the parade gets a free ticket to the Rodeo. In this same parade is a revue of the girls representing the different cities in the "Finest Outdoor Girl in California" contest. The winner receives a free trip to New York and return as a gift of the Grace Steamship Lines.

GIRL SCOUT LEADERS DISCUSS CAMP PROGRAM

Plans for the opening of the Girl Scout summer camp on July 31 were discussed at a meeting of the Monterey-Carmel Girl Scout council held Saturday afternoon at the Carmel valley home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray DeYoe.

A report on the activity of the San Francisco camp was given to the leaders by Mrs. Frank Townsend, who is head of the local council. The camp for Carmel and Monterey girl scouts is to be held this year in George Washington memorial park in Pacific Grove.

GIRL STUDENT TAKES STROLL UNDER WATER

And now the "weaker sex" have invaded the ocean floor.

Miss Frances Felin, a student in oceanography, on Sunday, attired in a heavy diver's suit, jumped off the Point Lobos cannery wharf and took a half hour's stroll under the water.

When she came up, she reported that the marine gardens in this section are among the finest she ever viewed.

SCHOOL BOARD WILL NOT MEET TUESDAY

Because of next Tuesday being a holiday the regular monthly meeting of the Sunset school trustees has been postponed until Thursday night, July 6, it was announced today.

Various routine matters, including further study of the recently drafted budget are to feature the discussion during the meeting.

Forest Theater Opens Season Tomorrow With "Pirate" Show

With Gilbert and Sullivan's famous operetta, "Pirates of Penzance" as the featured production, the twenty-fourth season of the Forest Theatre opens tomorrow night.

The production, one of the most elaborate ever staged here, will be repeated on Sunday and Monday night. A large cast, made up of residents from Carmel and other parts of the peninsula has been rehearsing for weeks and indications point to a most successful staging of the play.

The Forest Theatre is ideal for musical productions. It's romantic setting in the forest and under the stars adds considerable atmosphere to any play that is staged there.

Arthur Gunderson, who did such fine work with the producing of "S. S. Pinafore" is in charge of the directing of "Pirates of Penzance" assisted by Victory Kearney. Clay Otto made the settings.

Those in the cast include, Kathleen Murphy, Anna May Baer, Marie de Reimer, J. Rosslyn Jones, Ray Kocher, David Matzke, Menno Schoultree, Lucian Jones and many others.

PRO ARTE STRING QUARTET CONCERT

By Hal Garrott

All my life—and that's a long time—I've listened to string quartets, Spierings, Kneisels, Joachims, Londons, Neah-Kah-Nies, Flonzaleys, scores of them. And after all these years it remained for the Pro Artes playing in Sunset Auditorium in Carmel to give me the quartet thrill of a lifetime. When one lives in Carmel the expression "live and learn" becomes desperately true.

Sunset Auditorium was packed Tuesday night by an assemblage including celebrities too numerous to mention. The Carmel Music Society as well as Messrs. Onnou, Halleux, Maas and Prevost must have been highly gratified by the public response to this, the musical high spot of the season.

The program was conventional, embracing the Haydn Opus 54, the Beethoven No. 74, No. 10 and a Mozart Prelude and Fugue, with a charming impressionistic Stravinsky group for modern (some thought comic) relief.

In musicianship and technic the Pro Artes are easily peers to the best the world has produced. In spontaniety, freshness of attack, interpretative color and contrast they out-distance all others. They seem to be playing each number for the first time, encountering its beauties with the positive joy of discovery. They appear really thrilled. Needless to say the audience is enraptured.

Of course, like other master quartets, they possess a bag full of tricks. But these are kept pretty well hidden in the bag, or at least behind the flow of the music. There are diminuendoes as gradual as the sinking of the sun behind the western Pacific. Mozart's rather obvious repetition of his fugue theme is saved from monotony by vital performance. The usually tedious repeats in the Beethoven are eagerly listened for.

Beethoven may repeat, but the Pro Artes—never. Each recurring passage is read with contrasting color. Now it thunders, again it comes returning later to whisper. Do you recall the drama wrung from the second movement of the Haydn? That vicarious accent on the second of the three note theme? But we must not exhaust our vocabulary. The Pro Artes play again July 11.

Other quartets are like a tight-rope-walker, watchful of every step. The Pro Artes stroll out upon the wire as casually as if wandering through the woods in a picnic. They do not deign to glance at their feet. They are having too good a time.

The regular open rehearsal of the Penha Piano Quartet will be held on Monday evening next, July 3, in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. On the Monday following, before the second Pro Arte concert, the Carmel Music Society says there will be no rehearsal.

Horseback Riding At Pebble Beach Stables Is a Delightful Treat

Carmel was discovered by men on horseback, riding through the wilderness from far-off San Diego—and it still is a town for the man on horseback. Today the same beauty, the same enchanting panorama, unspoiled by the progress of time waits to be rediscovered by the equestrian. Mounted on a spirited but very steady saddle horse, the landscape unrolls before the eyes in a series of wonderful pictures, and the exhilerating exercise of riding adds zest to the pleasure of viewing.

Situated in the heart of Monterey Peninsula's incomparable beauty are the Pebble Beach stables. More and more people are finding these stables with their excellent faciilties for the horseman, their choice for the hours in the saddle.

Here at the Pebble Beach stables can be found horses to suit the abilities of everyone. From willing but gentle horses to spirited jumpers, polo ponies and horses with all gaits. Here, too, at Pebble Beach are broad fields, an excellent assortment of jumps and a large circular track for racing or where the beginner can practice and rest at ease.

Instruction in all fields of riding may be had for the asking at no cost but a low one for the horse. Riding, jumping and polo lessons are taught by experts, who are also ready to take the visitor over the bridle trails, leading him through beauty for which there is no equal.

It is not necessary to possess a riding habit, few do, but comfort rules the day. Should one lack old clothes, "jeans" or chaps can be obtained at the stables.

Choice of saddles can be had at the Pebble Beach stables whether [illegible] saddles that fit and are comfortable are at the rider's disposal.

Special children's classes with very special rates are being held every week. No one need be anxious about their boy or girl when they are receiving instruction and the benefit of healthy exercise out of doors.

It is not necessary to pay the toll at the several gates at the entrance to the Seventeen Mile Drive. Money will be refunded at the stables shouuld the entrance fee be exacted.

To reach Pebble Beach stables Lodge till a cross road is reached from Carmel follow the paved where three roads come together. road past the entrance to the Signs will point the way.—Adv.

That City Hall Again

Every city, town, village, hamlet and crossroads in these broad United States is planning to get a part of the Federal financing for uunemployment relief. It would be too much to expect Carmel to be different. We will strive with the others to pick our share. Only could we not find a more unique way of grabbing it than to build a city hall?

Neither as a relief measure for the out-of-workers, nor as a civic necessity, does the construction of a city hall fill the need. Only a very few of our unemployed would find temporary work on it, and experience with the school building has proven how impossible it is to assure local labor an advantage over the outsider. And interest on the bonds that would be required for the city's part of the cost, would be many times greater than the rent now being paid for the city's housing.

The city's needs for housing are a moderately sized council chamber, an office each for the city clerk, chief of police and judge, and a couple of lavatories. These may be rented, either where they now are or elsewhere, for under $1200 a year. Interest alone, not to include a redemption fund on a $50,000 bond issue would amount to $2000 a year. Until the cost of rentals for a city hall mount to the cost of interest on a bond issue, it is absurd to consider building.

A city hall never attracted anybody to visit a town, or make his home there. Except insofar as it serves the officials who are housed in it, there are no benefits derived from it. It isn't a municipal asset. It isn't an artistic attraction. It is, most usually, just the reverse.

Carmel has expressed itself, at the polls and in the council chambers, as against building a city hall. It has determinedly turned the idea down every time it has bobbed up. That 30 per cent of the cost may be scrooched out of Federal funds at this time will not change the public opinion as to our present day need for it, nor will the plea of unemployment relief get it very far. It isn't the right way to help out the situation, nor wil lthe people stand for it.

An argument which will be used to favor the plan is that it will provide a place for the fire department to house its appliances and to give the men fitting clubrooms. That has some weight, surely; but to build an unneeded and unwanted city hall, at heavy cost, for such a purpose is not good business. Better vote bonds directly for taking care of the firemen. That issue would have a chance at the polls. A city hall bond election is lost before it is called.

The other argument, that President Roosevelt's policies for aiding the general situation through local public works should be forwarded in Carmel, is mere hog-wash. Taking care of the additional taxes needed for a big bond issue isn't going to stem the depression in Carmel. Adding four or five thousand dollars to our annual tax levy isn't going to sweeten the outlook, not even to the unemployed, who also must pay taxes. A return to normal business conditions can not be brought about by jumping the costs of local government, or by boosting the taxes.

Serra Year

1934 is Junipero Serra Year, so authorized by the State Legislature. It is also the twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of the Forest Theatre. August 24 is Serra Day. It is also the very heart of the Forest Theatre season. Does anyone see opportunity in this combination of events?

Carmel was the home, the place of death and the tomb of Fra Junipero Serra. Any statewide celebration in honor of the First Presidente of the Californian Missions should be held here. And no organization could better prepare a fitting tribute to him than Carmel's Forest Theatre Society.

As a part of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Forest Theatre, a Serra festival and pageant should prove an attraction that would bring thousands of visitors and tourists to Carmel. It is something to think about.

No Best

I did not ask to be a lone one, Father,
I did not ask that all my days should be Restless with longing, driven and wild and questioning,
Hurried continually.

I should have liked to have been quiet, Father,
In a neat house tucked down behind a hill,
With cakes to bake, and socks to be a-mending,
Contentedly and still.

But you have given me wide webs of feeling
That tangle all the world within their ring,
Leaving me quivering and lacerated,
Questioned and questioning.

You let me have a glimpse of beauty, Father,
And after that you showed me waking pain,
And now the two are mingled and I'm trying
To loosen them again.

I once caught loveliness where she'd been sleeping
And saw the hollow that her body made
In the new grass, and then tall grasses bending
Where she had strayed.

She just escaped me fairy-footed, Father
While I ran madly after to the quest
Of the high hill and heard her silver laughter
And now—there is no rest.

—Elizabeth H. Honness, In Poetry World

Cobweb and Shadow

A truth abrupt and bright,
Clipped off with sharpened mind,
Is all I try to write,
No matter what I find:

The way a cobweb clings,
The slow, unconscious way
A shadow grows, are things
Too gradual to say.

—Margaret Fraser.

The Lonely One

You in your great and dark invisibleness
Have walked as the wind doth traverse in my room;
Have strode as the wind doth enter wide-flung windows
And burned like the hot south wind my beating temples.
Here in the great unseen and tremulous spirit
of you,
A swir of struggling wings weights heavy the air
The spirit is close with mine in the rose-pink evening,
Swimming like smoke through the woodland green with cut-grass
Slashed with lemon light from the evening sky.

—Victor Douglas

A Strange Situation

The right of men to organize to keep from starving and to put some small bit of food into the mouths of their wives and children, has been upheld by the State of California, through its industrial relations department, at a hearing in Monterey, where the Unemployment Relief Council was under investigation, charged with illegal competition with licensed building contractors. Representatives of the state who made the investigation cleared the council of criminality in its benevolent efforts, and allowed it to continue to provide work and food for the unemployed, although restricting its advertising and methods of finding jobs.

That an organization which had, in a considerable measure, found a way to give relief to the unemployed at the time of most serious need, trading provisions, fuel, and the necessities of existence for work, doing its grand job without lowering the pride of the individual, giving honest exchange—that such a situation should be forced to explain itself to the state, be put in the position of a criminal on trial, is one of the strangest things of these unusual times. That in doing this fine work, the organization violated—or nearly violated—the state law suggests the need of investigation of our laws, rather than investigation of the organization. If there stands upon our statute books a provision that will prevent an honest man from securing work at any pay he is willing to accept, or is forced by conditions to accept, then that law should go. And if men in need of work are prevented from combining to trade their labor for life's essentials by any statute, that law should be repealed.

The Unemployed Relief Council of the Monterey peninsula, with several hundred people on its lists to be helped and fed by it, has been exonerated of violating the law of the state. Further, the investigation has shown it to be honestly conducted, and ably doing its big job. It should have the support and the backing of every lover of justice on the peninsula.

Why Not a Gallery?

The Carmel Art Association, whose summer exhibits are of more than local interest, are planning now for this year's show to be held the latter half of July and the first part of August.

Of much more value to Carmel than a city hall would be a gallery in which a permanent exhibit of the work of our artists could be had for the benefit of our residents and the visitors to the village.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

Arthur Hill Gilbert who this week announces the opening of a summer course in art instruction, is one of the youngest members of the National Academy of Design, whose membership is now limited to less than a dozen artists on the Pacific coast.

Gilbert, strangely enough, received most of his European art training during the World War. He joined the American Navy as an officer and toured Europe making hundreds of sketches and studying under various famous artists.

At the end of the war, Gilbert opened a studio in Los Angeles and went into landscape painting as a profession. Some five years ago he moved to Carmel and it was while here that he painted the canvas that was not only to make him a member of the National Academy but to win him several important prizes.

Since then, Gilbert has been gaining wide recognition throughout the country and is now considered among the leading landscape painters in the west.

While he has moved his studio on the highway, nearer to Monterey than Carmel, Gilbert nevertheless is closely linked with the village. He still gets his mail in Carmel anl almost every day he comes over the hill for a trip to the local postoffice.

"No one can keep away from Carmel for any length of time," he explains.

Robert H. Duriee, who despite a considerable accumulation of years is one of Carmel's most aggressive civic leaders, is the man who named a certain New York street "Tin Pan Alley," which appellation has stuck to it during more than a third of a century. It happened back at the beginning of the 1900's, when Bob Duriee, known then under his stage name of Robert D. Girard, of the famous acrobatic team, the Girard Brothers, was in New York as eastern representative of the Orpheum circuit.

With Epes W. Sargent, Duriee was strolling over 28th street. Sargent, the first editor of Variety, was then a writer on the Morning Telegraph, with a column under the name of Chicot. As the two came into the block on 28th street between Broadway and Sixth avenue, their ears were assailed by numerous pianos from the many music publishing houses that lined both sides of the narrow street. Said Duriee,

"It sounds like tin pans in an alleyway."

"Good!" cried Sargent. "That's just the name for it! Tin Pan Alley!"

In the next morning's Telegraph Chicot's column first named the block on 28th street by the title that it has borne ever since. Of course Duuriee wasn't given the credit but nobody could expect that.

The acrobatic Girard Brothers had a long and interesting career in vaudeville's early days. They got together first in the "Black Crook" when that drama was hailed with delight, or frowned upon as a "Leg-show" from Maine to California. The Girards leaped through traps, somersaulted, flip-flopped and "Allezoop-ed" all through the extravaganza.

Las Tapatias, Ladies from Guadalajara, in "A Night in Mexico."

Later the Girards played the summer-gardens, and were a headliner at Woodward's in San Francisco. The beginning of vaudeville found them chasing the circuits. Then they went abroad, playing Covent Garden in London, and in all the greater European cities. They settled in Paris for a time, with their own theatre and a performance that was extremely modern at the time.

Duriee first came to Carmel to live in 1907, though he remained identified with theatrical matters both in San Francisco and Los Angeles, for several years afterward. An accident that happened some time ago when he fell from a chair on which he was standing to hang a picture, seriously injuring himself, was given wide notoriety in the newspapers because of his fame as an acrobat and equilibrist.

J. E. Tiedeman, militant editor of the Morgan Hill Times, who was beaten by a gang of men last week because of a strong editorial he wrote, is well known in Carmel where he is a frequent visitor.

Tiedeman was formerly automobile editor of the San Francisco Examiner, then later published a daily newspaper in Pittsburg, Calif., and two years ago finally purchased the Morgan Hill Times.

Tiedeman in his editorial attacked the "town loafers" whom he claimed preferred to stand in pool halls than to apply for jobs on a large railroad project now under way in Morgan Hill. Enraged over the editorial, a gang of men entered Tiedeman's small editorial offices and before he could defend himself, they struck him down.

When he was connected with The Examiner, Tiedeman on many occasions devoted the Sunday automotive section to description of the scenic beauty of Carmel and other parts of the peninsula.

As Carmel prepared itself for its summer theatrical season, Moroni Olsen, who took part in many local productions in the past paid a brief visit to the village last week and praised the schedule of plays to be given here in the next few months.

Olsen, who headed his own company, will be remembered by Carmel residents for the fine productions he staged at the Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Olsen is now in charge of the department of producing and directing at Leland Powers School of Theatre in Boston — the same institution from which he graduated some 20 years ago. During his varied dramatic career, Olsen has played in all parts of the country although his interest has always been in the development and progress of the "little theatre" movement..

"I envy Carmel residents who this summer will have an opportunity to witness the plays at the Forest Theatre and at the Community Playhouse," Olsen said. "I find that the same enthusiasm for the drama that has always been so much a part of Carmel is still here and stronger than ever."

The passing of Daniel A. Ryan, attorney of San Francisco, has brought out a number of stories of old-time political fights, closely linked with the writer of these paragraphs, who was one of the sponsors for Ryan's mayoralty campaigns. Both in 1905, when I urged his nomination on the Anti-Ruef ticket, and in 1907 when he was nominated by the Republicans and ran against Edward Robeson Taylor, democrat, and P. H. McCarthy, union-labor, I was his political manager, friend and advisor.

None too good an advisor evidently, as Dan Ryan ran third in the race of 1907. I still consider him the best man for the job that could have been found at that time, and believe San Francisco made a mistake in not selecting him. Dan Ryan was an independent and courageous young Irishman, without any political strings to him and would have made a better job of that clean-up of corruption in politics than either of his opponents could.

A story of him in the campaign of 1907 that I have told before, will bear repeating. The fight wasn't going too well, when one morning Dan blew into headquarters, with,

"How does it look to you, Perry?"

"Fine, Dan. It's going finely."

"Yes," smiled Dan, "If Taylor drops dead, and McCarthy drops dead, I'll be elected."

Maynard Dixon, painting not in his "newer manner" but in the zestful and romantic sweeping style of his earlier canvasses, has lately finished a mural for the study of the Fremont Junior High School of Los Angeles. It shows General Fremont with his scouts and Indian guides coming into California through the Sierras. The likenesses of Freemont and [illegible] were taken from old engravings.

The Golden Text will be: "The Lord Shall reign for ever and ever" (Ex. 15:18). Other Bible citations will include: "O Lord there is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears" (I Chron. 17:20).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite. Mind, Spirit, Soul, principle, Life, Truth, Love Are these terms synonymous? They are. They refer to one absolute God. They are also intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity. The attributes of God are justice, mercy, wisdom, goodness, and so on. Principle and its idea is one, and this one is God, omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent Being, and His reflection is man and the universe." (pp. 465, 466.)

BANK OF CARMEL ENJOYS TENTH ANNIVERSARY

depositary for city funds, as well as depositary for practically all of Carmel's organizations and clubs, and is now designated by the Government as a United States Postal Savings depositary.

By appreciative support of the people of this comunity and capable and efficient management, the growth of the institution continued until today its more than fifteen hundred depositors and The Bank of Carmel ranks among [illegible] outstanding financial institutions of the country.

A current financial statement the institution reflects earned surplus and undivided profit accounts of approximately $90,000.-00, which amount is about double the paid-in capital. These funds have been set aside by the directors from the net earnings of the institution during the past ten years and created solely for the benefit and protection of the depositors. In the period of ten years of operation The Bank of Carmel has paid interest on savings accounts at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, compounded semi-annually and has paid to its savings depositors approximately $100,000.00 interest. Stockholders in this community owned bank have received regular semi-annual dividends at the rate of 8 per cent and 10 per cent per annum or a total in dividends of $38,000.00. In line with the conservative policy of operation the management and directors, from the beginning, inaugurated a liberal policy of depreciation on the banking premises, fixtures and equipment, and during the period of organization has charged against earning the sum of $15,-000.00 for depreciation purposes. Itemizing the above statements for more convenient reading the same would be as follows:

Paid in capital	$50,000
Earned surplus and undivided profits	$90,000
Interest paid to depositors	$100,000
Dividends to stockholders	$38,000
Depreciation on premises, fixtures and equipment	$15,000

The soundness of any banking or financial institution depends upon its management and the earning capacity. Without earning ability, over and above general overhead and expenses, the capital structure would soon be impaired. The figures submitted herewith would indicate that the net earnings of this locally owned institution during the past ten years have been about 300 per cent on the capital investment of $50,000.00, and that about 200 per cent of these earnings have been placed in the surplus and undivided profit account, which is for the protection of the depositors' funds.

As a means of further serving its depositors and offering additional protection to their funds, the officers and directors of The Bank of Carmel have recently filed with the Federal Reserve Board an application for membership in the Federal Reserve System. Since organization the investments of this institution have consisted only of the highest rated bonds, United States Government, municipal and school district bonds predominating, no stocks of any description having been carried in the investment account. These bonds have been selected from a standard of security and liquidity rather than yield, so that even under the present adverse market conditions the bond investment account is at par. Several years ago when "call money" on Wall Street was netting banks 10 to 20 per cent The Bank of Carmel retained locally all of its depositors' funds to be used and invested in this community for the benefit of its clients.

It may also be interesting to know that in this period of national financial difficulties Carmel has a financial institution which in 1931 was able to increase the dividend on its capital stock from 8 to 10 per cent per annum, and also retain all employes without decreasing salaries. This appears quite remarkable due to the fact that many banks and corporations in other sections of the country have had decreased earnings and have been forced to cut or suspend payment of dividends and reduce their operating personnel and overhead. The increase of dividends during this period is indicative of the sound and flourishing condition of this institution as well as establishing the fact that the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel, particularly, is one of the few white spots in the nation's business today.

Unemployed Relief Council Is Praised by State Investigators

The Unemployed Relief Council with headquarters at New Monterey, which has done fine work throughout the peninsula, giving food, clothing fuel and the necessities of life in exchange for labor, has survived an exhaustive investigation by the state division of labor statistics an dlaw enforcement, and has come through with flying colors.

Charges had been made of illegal competition with contractors, and of graft by the council officials and deputy Arthur L. Johnson for the state labor department, and Orman Lutz of the department of professional and vocational standards, came to Monterey last week to make investigation. Hearings were had, officials of the council answered the charges of those making them, and the books and records of the council were gone over by the state officials. The result is told in a statement made by deputy Johnson, who said:

"If I had found any evidence of graft or racketeering in the part of council officers, or intent to violate any laws, I should swear out warrants at once for arrest of the individuals involved. On the contrary, I am convinced that the organization and its executives are doing good work."

With 203 active members at the present time, the council is providing a total of 646 men, women and children with food, clothing, fuel and other necessaries. Members of the Committee of Fifteen and other relief organizations in Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel conferred with Johnson stressing the importance of having the council continue its operations in order that the entire burden of caring for this large number of people should not be placed upon the other organizations.

Scarcity of funds would make it impossible to handle the situation if that were done, Johnson was told.
